If you ever need to find me then check the Minneapolis airport, that's where I've been for the past 15 years or so. I've been hanging out on a vending machine there since Mike and I were part of a Minnesota Office of Tourism photo shoot years ago. It shouldn't come as a surprise they sell Diet Coke in this machine as people always say I should be a spokesperson for my favorite beverage. It looks like my sister-in-law visited me there recently and took a photo that she posted on facebook. The next time you're at the airport keep your eyes peeled for me, I'll be there.
